

June 14, 2006

United Healthcare is proud to announce a collaborative effort with eDoc4u to meet the specific health care requirements of the African American community and employer groups with a diverse workforce.

eDoc4u provides online preventive medical care tailored to the unique needs of HBCU employees and their families to stay healthy.

As an extension to myuhc.com, eDoc4u helps you understand and manage your personal disease risks.

Your specific risks for heart disease, diabetes, cancer, asthma and other conditions are calculated relative to other peers of similar age, gender and ethnicity. Unique actionable recommendations are identified to lower these health risks.

Using video-on-demand presentations, our physicians deliver culturally competent recommendations that are specific to your preventive care needs. These include lab tests, exams, special procedures and self-care.

Better communication, individual understanding, and care management for a healthier life...

eDoc4u provides web-based culturally competent preventive care programs to ethnically diverse communities.

eDoc4u has pioneered interactive preventive care and intervention services in community health center settings to improve the quality of medical services and affect positive outcomes.

